

Morse is valuable and should remain a requirement. In a day of terror or other emergency MORSE could be the only viable means of communication. It's relevance should be incorporated in the military/coast guard and require transmissions and monitoring of designated frequency's. morse should be considered a language and offered in schools as a subject.